The 19th Annual Western Colorado Community Forestry Conference

Growing Green Solutions For Communities

September 18, 2009
Carbondale Town Hall

Mt. Sopris, Carbondale, Colorado

In 1999, the Town of Carbondale hosted the 10th Annual Western Colorado Community Forestry Conference (WCCFC). The theme of that conference was "Growing Trees in Growing Communities." This year, the 19th WCCFC will again be in Carbondale, but this time the conference is being co-hosted by the towns of Basalt and Carbondale.

Although this year's theme of "Growing Green Solutions for Communities" has a similar message, the focus will be on newer and nontraditional benefits of trees. As communities grow into the 21st century, tree benefits like carbon sequestration, air quality, carbon banking, storm water management, and energy conservation are beginning to move to the forefront of urban forest management.
