

IES Tree Stewards Volunteer Positions

IES seeks motivated community members who want to protect and improve the environment!

The Institute for Environmental Solutions is an independent non-profit organization that delivers scientific solutions to improve our health and environment.

The IES Tree Project improves the Denver-metro area through tree science. A key part of the success of our community planting programs is our Tree Stewards team. IES Tree Stewards help care for newly planted native trees, shrubs, and grasses by watering and maintenance.

IES has planting sites in Wheat Ridge's Greenbelt and along the Sheridan Quincy Trail in Sheridan, Colorado. Our sites have over 1,000 native trees, shrubs, and grasses that could use your help!

We have volunteer opportunities to fit any schedule. Tree Stewards can help once or twice a week, or once or twice a month. IES provides training and support for stewards, and the equipment needed.

Join other local volunteers, get some fresh air and exercise, and improve our environment!

To volunteer, or for more information, please contact IES at Solutions@i4es.org or call (720) 295-4437.
